A Honey Farm.

Traveling along the concrete road down Fore Street, Oxford, one can scarcely fail to notice a field thickly settled with swarms of bees, their homes painted in various colors. It is an unusual settlement for Oxford County. They belong to AiO. Twitchell They belong to Ai-O. Twitchell. His farm is situated a couple of miles south of Norway village, and runs up out before using. Portland cement usu-over the hills from the road. Although Mr. Twitchell has kept binding part of the cement. bees for most of his life, it has only been about a year since he went into it on a large scale. At the beginning he had only five swarms but at present he has over fifty. Mr. Twitchell makes most of his hives and frames. His hives are crushed stones and sometimes small of two kinds,—double hives which are kept out of doors all winter and single ones which he puts in his cellar during cold weather. During the past month the bees have kept Mr. Twitchell busy, the old colonies sending out new swarms. Mr. Twitchell has saved them all,—or nearly all. He puts on a special regalia when he dedicates a new hive to honey gathering, but the bees are so ungrateful they will sting him occasionally. But Mr. Twitchell is largely immune to-a the same as chewing tobacco, he says. The bees have been very busy during June in gathering honey as well as founding new colonies. The clover season is perhaps the best for honey storage of all flower periods. Many of the hives have already fifty pounds or more of honey in them. Mr. Twitchell thinks his bees will store up a ton this season. Bee culture is very interesting aside of strength such as heavy walls, foundaocial and communal life are something

He disposes of most of his crop this way. one can never tire of watching, and their strange instincts, assuming it is nothing more, is something one can ponder over, when doing nothing else. Naturalists have spent lifetimes in studying these sects and entire books have been writen about them; but Mr. Twitchell says he most he knows about them he has corred first hand

Socially and politically they seem Bolsheviks; but they are tolerated here in Republican America just about Russia is tolerated over across. Honey raisers generally put a blockade around their beehives to keep small boys and others from enjoying stolen sweets from within; and America and other nations put a blockade around Russia so she could not enjoy sweets from with out, which appears to be the same thing with a difference. It is a communisti inciple in Russia that everybody must work if he is to partake of the common tore of food; but bees are rather more merican in practice, and base their istoms on the song, "Everybody Works riter whether the male members of the ive—the drones—"hangs round all day" rom necessity or inclination. At any season. The neuters seem willing to put up with the drones philandering about their queen during pleasant sum-mer weather, but when it comes winter neir communistic spirit gets the better f them and they have to go summarily and cruelly, in much the same way as he late czar and family walked the hoard in Russia.

These speculations have nothing to do with honey raising but are thrown in for when one buys a pound of comb honey One can forget the first and burn the cond if they seem unnecessary.

A fine lot of Plymouth Rock chick ens have been started by Mrs. H. O. Coy of Welchville, seven hundred in one yard. These include some that were early hatched. In another yard are smaller ones. For several years she has been interested in hens and this season is making an attempt to keep more. She wintered one hundred and fifty, which laid heavily during the winter. This spring many of the eggs were sold for hatching purposes.
Formerly Mrs. Coy kept Rhode Island Reds, but they proved to be great setters, so she changed to Plymouth Rocks. Another reason was for the fine roasters hey make. All of her chickens are kept and not sold for broilers. She plans to winter three hundred pulets. She will fatten the cockerels for market after the best ones are taken out for breeding purposes. Three incubators were set during the spring and the hatch was good. Many f the chickens have made such a good start she expects them to be laying in September. Between four and five hun-dred day old chicks were sold, the price

Here and There.

This old earth of ours is getting chummy with Mars, one of our nearest neighbors out in the blue ether. The earth is not altogether to blame for this because Mars is coming more than balf way-coming nearer than she has been before since 1909. Of course we are in terested in her-want to see how she looks and in the red robe in which she is dressed; so we are pointing our biggest lorgnette at her, -Dr. Percival Lowell's great telescope at Flagstaff, Arizona. If one looks at her, with the natural eye, twenty-eighth year that Mrs. Brown has she is only a bright red star, the same as she always has been; so one can hardly realize she is flirting with the earth; but she is,—at least astronomers say she is: With the naked eye she looks about as large as one's fist, but out through Lowell's big telescope she looks about twenty-five times the area of the full moon, as seen with naked eye, so she is some planet. Perhaps our astronomers can now find out what she is doing with canals, and whether she really wears an ice

Since we have been having county agents and county demonstrators life has been growing more complex. What we ing was beld at Grange Hall Friday once put into the inner man was simply food. If it was something not very extrs, why, one simply ate to live; but, if it was something good, a large number of us lived to eat. If one bad had an ides, however, that there were vitamines in these viands, quite likely they would have looked so like germs or some other crawling things they would have turned the stomach of the eater; but, it seems, we have to have the buge in order to live

Thompson's Pond. Worse weather for camping could not be imagined, but every one had a "corking good time" and had to come home too quick.

Twelve Scouts, accompanied by Scout Executive Perham, started for Oxford Wednesday forenoon "loaded for business". Before half the journey was covered soft raindrops began to fall. These drops developed shortly into a rainfall which put a "debutante slouch" on to every Scout bat. At this point in the trip a star shone through in the shape of a big empty truck headed for Oxford. Welcome Oxford-Hayes' barn.

The troop camped in Hayes' barn, a nile and a half from Oxford village. This proved an ideal spot: a brook on one side, a sand stretch on the other side, and "unlucky thirteen" between them. Everybody kept busy and there was no complaining. No one wanted to go home only to get articles to stay longer with. Athletics and swimming took up the larger part of the time. Pole vault, high jump, broad jump, standing and ruoning, sprints, swimming races, special trapeze performance, and base ball was the program.

At Mrs. Morrison's Table. (By Ernest L. Thurston.) Mrs. George Morrison is an exceeding ly popular hostess. Her invitations to iunch, suuper or dinner are rarely related. Yet the company is seldom large, nor are the social lions a drawing card. Seldom is there more than one other great. other guest. Often one finds oneself alone with the family-George and Mrs George, and two most vigorous, active little youngsters.

Old Carpets Worth Reweaving. Providing floor coverings for the home is often a question of making the best of what materials are at hand. One way of doing this is to have new rugs woven from old woolen carpets and rugs too shabby to be used as such. Factories for doing the work may be found in many localities. The old material is cut into strips about three-fourths inch wide, which when sewed together and twisted make a cord somewhat like chenille and tasks.

pavement at record-breaking speed—that is the gritelling test Oldfield Cord Tires underwent successfully at Indianapolis Speedway May 30th. They were on the winner's car for the third successive year and on eight of the ten finishing in the money, upholding the confidence successful race drivers have in the trustworthiness and ability of these tires to meet the greatest demands of speed, endurance and safety. Their records in every other important race have been equally as good.

Consider this achievement along with another test of Oldfield quality made at Wichita, Kansas, this past winter and early 34,525 miles on rutted, icy Kansas roads, running day and night on a Studebaker stock car without a single tire change. This test was made by a group of Wichita automotive dealers in a tire, oil and gasoline economy run. Mayor Kemp of Wichita was official observer and made affidavit to the mileage and service given by Oldfield tires.

You may never subject your tires to the gruelling experience of Indianapolis nor the steady grind of bad winter roads, but it is good to know you can get such safety and mileage economy by buying Oldfield tires. Ask your nearest dealer.
